

Juvenile hormone signaling: Finding a unique receptor for the unique hormone

Marek Jindra

Two non-peptide lipophilic hormones, ecdysone and juvenile hormone (JH), govern insect development. Finding a receptor for JH was lagging two decades behind finding the ecdysone receptor, and required both non-Drosophila models and fly genetics.