

Cellular response to nematode infection and IDGF3

Ulrich Theopold

We present new evidence for a protective function of the clot during nematode infections of insects. We also show that - similar to what has been proposed mammals - a member of the Chitinase-like proteins in Drosophila appears to regulate wound healing.